5. Consider ways to impact negotiations for a Trans Pacific Partnership (TPP) trade agreement that encourages all governments to work toward an ambitious agreement that liberalizes agriculture trade by resolving the negotiations should include:
6. Build a stronger relationship between the PNWER and the Canada-U.S. Grain and Seed Trade Task Group that includes facilitating PNWER industry input into the ongoing activities and agenda of the Task Group.

EU-U.S. – Transatlantic Trade and Investment Talks Start

On July 8-12 the U.S. and EU began negotiations on the Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership (TTIP) in Washington, D.C. The primary purpose of the first round of TTIP discussions was to establish a foundation for future discussion. In his opening statement, U.S. Trade Representative, Mike Froman said, “We have an opportunity to spur growth and to generate significant increases in the already substantial number of jobs supported by transatlantic trade and investment. We have the opportunity to complement one of the greatest alliances of all time with an equally compelling economic relationship. And we have the opportunity to work together to establish and enforce international norms and standards that will help inform and strengthen the multilateral, rules-based trading system.”

After the first round of negotiations, the U.S. Trade Representative was optimistic the U.S. and EU could complete an agreement in a timely fashion. The official press release can be found here. The next round of talks is scheduled for the week of October 7, 2013 in Brussels.

NAEGA president and CEO, Gary Martin, is scheduled to meet with U.S. Trade Representative, Mike Froman, at a roundtable discussion on Monday, July 29 to express NAEGA’s priorities in both the Transpacific Partnership Agreement (TPP) and TTIP.

If you have comment or questions about the negotiations - Please contact Gary or Kyle this week.

Japan-U.S. – GM Wheat: Japan’s Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fishery Visits U.S.

A delegation from the Japanese Ministry of Agriculture and Fishery and Forestry (MAFF) visited United States this last week to learn more about the circumstances related to the finding of biotech event CP4, 71800 in plant material in a single field in Oregon. The trip was part of the Japanese effort to restart tender of U.S. wheat after it ceased imports due to a field escape of the regulated biotechnology event that is not approved in Japan.

In Washington, DC the MAFF team met with USDA including APHIS, FGIS and FAS as well as their own embassy. On Wednesday in a meeting hosted by NGFA and NAEGA the team met with the industry associations and U.S. Wheat Associates and National Association of Wheat Growers. The Wednesday meeting focused on U.S. wheat growers' use of glyphosate and tentative plans by Japan to restore western white wheat to its tender list (including likely testing requirements, at least initially, for U.S. cargoes). After its visit to Washington, the MAFF delegation visited Portland for additional meetings and a visit to TEMCO export facility at Irving Street, and Overseas Merchandise Inspection Company (OMIC). MAFF will also meet with the Japan Grain Import Association member companies in Portland.

The delegation from MAFF consisted of:

- Tetsuaki YAMASHITA, Managing Director, Grain Trade and Operation Division
- Takaya KOMINE, Manager of Grain Imports, Grain Trade and Operation Division
- Hiroaki SATO, Section Chief, Trade Policy for Wheat and Barley, Grain Trade and Operation Division.

In Washington, D.C. the MAFF delegation was joined by:

- Takashi SADAKANE, First Secretary of Agriculture, Embassy of Japan; and
- Naritoshi TAKAYAMA, Counselor, Embassy of Japan.

In Portland, it was joined by:

- Masaru IJIMA, Consul, Consular Office of Japan in Portland; and
- Takashi (Terry) NAGASAKA, General Manager, OMIC Portland.

After the DC meetings, USDA officials indicated that MAFF’s intent, supported by USDA, was to gradually restore U.S. wheat trade to normalcy – including a return of Soft White Wheat to the regular MAFF tender. Further USDA thought the MAFF delegation obtained sufficient answers on the status of the APHIS investigation to make recommendations to the MAFF leadership, the Ministry of Health and the Japanese legislature.

Subsequent reports indicate that MAFF is still seeking some additional information but is proceeding to consider returning SWW to the tender as well implement a testing regime to meet the needs of the Ministry of Health Labor and Welfare (MHLW). We understand the testing regime to facilitate MHLW monitoring for all U.S. origin wheat is to begin immediately. A portion of the wheat sample obtained by USDA FGIS at load port will be submitted for testing to either the OMIC lab in the U.S. or a lab in Japan. Negative tests will allow the shipment to proceed without delay to Japan. Details on what happens should a confirmed positive test result are not yet clear.

In summary we believe the visit from MAFF officials was very constructive and very much appreciated the time they spent to examine the CP4 71800 circumstance. And:

- We understand MAFF can’t say when it will announce a decision on resumption of tenders for western white. We know that MAFF will first brief the MAFF minister, get his approval. Then MAFF will need to brief the Prime Minister’s office (get his approval) as well the Ag Caucus Diet members.
- In addition to the testing regime for MHLW, we also believe MAFF HQ will consider discontinuing the current state of origin language requirements.
- We think MAFF will continue to announce test results from the MHLW testing.

NAEGA continues to be very much engaged in the industry association response to CP4 71800. We will report on outcomes as we become aware. We are now pressing for a conclusion to the USDA investigation that includes the identification of the class of wheat the suspect plant material was from. Importantly we continue to stress the need for an exit strategy from any testing regime, and that does seem to be getting some traction with both MAFF and the U.S. government.

Comments or questions from NAEGA members – especially regarding concerns over costs and risks imposed on the grain trade as result of any official actions related to CP4 71800 in wheat are much appreciated.

U.S. – USDA, GIPSA Amends Regulations

The Department of Agriculture (USDA), Grain Inspection, Packers and Stockyards Administration (GIPSA) has issued a final rule, amending the regulations that cover the official grain inspection and weighing service procedures that GIPSA's Federal Grain Inspection Service (FGIS) performs under the authority of the United States Grain Standards Act (USGSA), as amended.

Specifically, GIPSA is amending the regulations issued under the USGSA pertaining to grain exported in large reusable containers typically loaded onto export ships. In this final rule, GIPSA will add new definitions for “composite” and “average” grades, limit the number of containers that may be averaged or combined to form a single lot, restrict the inspection and weighing of container lots to the official service provider's area of responsibility, specify a 60-day retention period for file samples representing such container lots, make consistent the weighing certification procedures for container lots with those for inspection certification procedures, and make other miscellaneous changes. GIPSA believes that these revisions will help facilitate the marketing of U.S. grain shipped for export.

The full rule can be found here. If you have questions, comments or concerns about this final rule, please feel free to contact NAEGA.
